ARGUMENT

In the days when Erechtheus ruled over Athens, Apollo wrought violence to the king's young daughter Creusa. And she, having borne a son, left him, by reason of her fear and shame, in the cave wherein the God had humbled her. But Apollo cared for him, and caused the babe to be brought to Delphi, even to his temple. Therein was the child nurtured, and ministered in the courts of the God's house. And in process of time Erechtheus died, and left no son nor daughter save Creusa, and evil days came upon Athens, that she was hard bestead in war. Then Xuthus, a chief of the Achaean folk, fought for her and prevailed against her Euboean enemies, and for guerdon of victory received the princess Creusa to wife, and so became king-consort in Athens. But to these twain was no child born ; so. after many years, they journeyed to Delphi to inquire of the oracle of Apollo touching issue. And there the God ordered all things so that the lost was found, and an heir was given to the royal house of Athens. through the blind haste of mortals, and their little faith. was the son well-nigh slain by the mother, and the mother by the son.

HERMES

Atlas, whose brazen shoulders wear the base Of heaven, the ancient home of Gods, begat Of a certain Goddess¹ Maia, which bare me, Hermes, heaven's messenger, to Zeus most high. Now to this Delphian land I come, where Phoebus Hath at earth's navel his prophetic seat, Revealing things that are and things to be.

There is a famous city of the Greeks,
Named Burg of Pallas of the Golden Spear.
There Phoebus forced Erechtheus' child Creusa,
Where the north-facing rocks, beneath the Mount
Of Pallas in the Athenian land, are called
The Long Cliffs by the lords of Attica.
Naught knew her sire—for this was Phoebus' will—

The burden 'neath her heart; but in due time She travailed in his halls, and brought the babe Unto the selfsame cave wherein the God Had humbled her, and left it there to die In the fair-rounded hollow of an ark, Still keeping the tradition of her race And earth-born Erichthonius, by whom Zeus' Daughter set for warders of his life Two serpents, ere to the Agraulid maids

She gave the babe to nurse. For this cause there The Erechtheids use to hang about their babes Serpents of gold. Yea, broidery from her robe She tied to her babe, and left him, as for death. Then did my brother Phoebus ask me this: "Go, brother, to the earth-born folk of Athens The glorious,—for thou know'st Athena's burg,— 30 And from the rock-cleft take a babe new-born. With cradle and with swaddling-bands withal, And bear to Delphi, to mine oracle, And set him at my temple's entering-in. All else be mine: for this-that thou mayst know,---Is my son." For a grace to Loxias My brother, took I up the woven ark, And bare, and on the basement of this fane I set him, opening first the cradle's lid With-woven, that the boy might so be seen. 40 And, as the sun drove forth his chariot, passed A priestess into the prophetic shrine, Who, casting eyes upon the wordless babe, Marvelled that any Delphian maid should dare Into the God's house fling her child of shame, And o'er the holy pale in zeal had thrust; But pity banished cruelty: yea, the God Wrought that the boy be not cast forth his fane. So took she him and nursed, nor knew the sire Was Phoebus, nor the reckling's mother knew; 50 Nor knows the boy who brought him into life. So did the youngling round the altars sport That fed him. When to manhood waxed his frame, The Delphians made him treasurer of the God,

And trusted steward of all; and in the fane

He liveth to this day a hallowed life. But she, Creusa, that had borne the lad. Was wed to Xuthus, by such hap as this:— A surge of war 'twixt Athens rose and them That in Euboea hold Chalcidice: 60 Then on their side he fought, and smote their foes, And for his guerdon won Creusa's hand-An alien, yet Achaean born, and son Of Aeolus son of Zeus. But, after years Of wedlock, childless are they, for which cause To this shrine of Apollo have they come, Yearning for seed. Now Loxias guides their fate Hereto, nor hath forgotten, as might seem. He shall give Xuthus, when he entereth, His own child, saying to him, "Lo, thy son," 70 That the lad, coming home, made known may be Unto Creusa, Loxias' deed abide Unknown, and so the child may have his right. And Ion shall he cause him to be called Through Greece, the founder of an Asian realm. Now to you hollow bay-embowered I go To watch how destiny dealeth with the lad. For yonder see I Loxias' child come forth To make the temple-portals bright with boughs And by the name that he shall bear, 80 Ion, do I first name him of the Gods. Exit. To the sacred night: And the crests of Parnassus untrodden are flaming and flushed, as with yearning [daylight returning Of welcome to far-flashing wheels with the glory of To mortal sight. To the roof-ridge of Phoebus the fume of the incense of Araby burning As a bird taketh flight. Maiden 90 On the tripod most holy is seated the Delphian Chanting to children of Hellas the wild cries, laden With doom, from the lips of Apollo that ring. Delphians, Phoebus's priesthood-train. Except unto happier lot I go!

Flights of birds are seen approaching.

Ho there, ho there!

Even now are they flocking, the fowl of the air,
On Parnassus forsaking each crag-hung lair.

Touch not, I warn ye, the temple's coping,

Waft onward thy wings of snow:
Light down on the Delian mere oversea,
Lest the blood-rush choke, if thou do not so,

CHORUS 14

Our lady had given us leave,—"Upon all These shrines," hath she said, "may ye gaze."

ION

And the servants ye name you of what lord's hall?

In Pallas's dwelling-place

Is the mansion of princes that nurtured me;

But of whom thou inquirest, lo, here is she.

Enter CREUSA.

ION

High birth is thine, and carriage consonant
Thereto, O lady, whosoe'er thou be.
Yea, in a man ofttimes may one discern,
Marking his bearing, strain of gentle blood.
Ha, thou dost move me strangely!—down-dropt eves.

And noble cheeks all wet with rain of tears, • At sight of Loxias' pure oracle! How cam'st thou, lady, 'neath such load of care? Where all beside, beholding the God's shrines, Rejoice, a fountain is thine eye of tears.

CREUSA

Stranger, I count it not discourtesy
That thou shouldst marvel touching these my tears.
But, looking on Apollo's dwelling-place,
I traversed o'er an ancient memory's track:
Afar my thoughts were, and my body here.
Ah, wrongs of women!—wrongful-reckless deeds
Of Gods! For justice where shall we make suit,
If 'tis our Lords' injustice crushes us?

ION

Lady, for what veiled grief art thou cast down?

Naught: I have sped my shaft: as touching this, Nothing I say, nor thou conjecture aught.

ION

Who art thou? What thy country? Of what sire Wert born? What name is meet we name thee by?

CREUS.

Creusa I, of King Erechtheus born: The Athenians' city is my fatherland. 260

ION

O dweller in a glorious burg, and sprung Of noble sires!—blest I account thee, lady.

CREUSA

Thus far, nor farther, stranger, goes my weal.

ION

Ah, is it true, the legend told to men-

CREUSA

What wouldst thou, stranger, ask? I fain would learn.

ION

That from the earth thy father's grandsire sprang?

Yea, Erichthonius:-me his birth avails not.

ION

And did Athena take him forth the earth?

CREUSA

Yea, in her maiden arms: no mother she.

270

ION

And gave it, as the pictured legend tells—

CREUSA

To Cecrops' daughters to be nursed unseen.

How not?—his is the nation's oracle.

His shame the deed is. Question not of him.

CREUSA

O yea, the sufferer in her lot may pine!

ION

There's none will ask the God of this for thee. For, in his own halls were he villain proved, Vengeance on him who brought thee that response Would Phoebus justly wreak. Ah lady, go: We must not seek his shrine to flout the God. For lo, what height of folly should we reach If in the Gods' despite we wrest their will, By sacrifice of sheep on altars, or By flight of birds, to tell what they would veil. Could we of force wring aught from Gods full loth, Profitless blessings, lady, should we grasp; But what they give free-willed are boons indeed.

ION

Why doth this stranger rail upon the God In riddles of dark sayings evermore? For love of her for whom she seeks the shrine? Or keeping back a thing she must not speak? Yet with Erechtheus' daughter what have I To do? She is naught to me. But I will go Unto the lavers, with the golden ewers To pour in water-dews. Yet must I plead With Phoebus—what ails him? He ravisheth Maids, and forsakes; begetteth babes by stealth, And heeds not, though they die. Do thou not so Being strong, be righteous. For what man soe'er Transgresseth, the Gods visit this on him.

How were it just then that ve should enact For men laws, and yourselves work lawlessness? For if—it could not be, yet put it so— Ye should pay mulct to men for lawless lust,1 Thou, the Sea-king, and Zeus the Lord of Heaven, Paying for wrongs should make your temples void. Through the light of a clear revelation Fair offspring at last may attain.	470
'Tis a treasure whose seals are unbroken, 'Tis a joy that surpasseth the lot Of the many, when stalwart and tall Shines fair in a father's hall The presence of sons, to betoken A line that shall perish not;
Sons, that, when death bringeth severance, Shall receive to pass on to their seed The wealth that their sires' hands hold: Yea, by these be our sorrows consoled, And a joy within joy they enfold, And their spear flasheth light of deliverance In the hour of the fatherland's need.	480
Ah, far above golden treasure Or than princely halls do I praise Dear children to cherish—mine own! Mine horror were life all lone: Who loveth it, wit hath he none: But give to me substance in measure, And children to brighten my days!	490
O haunts of Pan's abiding, (Epode) O sentinel rock down-gazing On the Long-cliff caves dim-glimmering, Where, with shadowy feet in the dance soft-sliding, Agraulus' daughters three go pacing O'er the lawns by Athena's fane dew-shimmering Silent?—Now wherefore earthward droops thine eye, And thou art deep in thought, and from thy joy Art changed, and strikest dread into thy sire?

ION

The face of things appeareth not the same Far off, and when we scan them nigh at hand. So do I greet with gladness this my lot Who find a sire: howbeit hear what burden Weighs on my soul. The glorious earth-born state, Athens, men say, hath naught of alien strain. 590 I shall thrust in, stained with a twofold taint— An outland father, and my bastard self. And, bearing this reproach, nor strong in friends, "Nobody" shall be called—"Nobody's Son." Then, if I press to Athens' highest ranks, And seek a name, of dullards shall I win Hatred; for jealousy ever dogs success. Good men, whose wisdom well could helm the state, Who yet hang back, who never speak in public, To them shall I be laughing-stock and fool, 600 Who, in a town censorious, go not softly. And statesmen who have made their mark, mid whom

I seek repute, will hedge me in, and check By the assembly's votes. 'Tis ever so; They which sway nations, and have won repute, To young ambitions are the bitterest focs.

Then, coming to a strange house, alien I, And to a childless lady, who hath shared With thee her sorrow heretofore, but now Shall bear in bitterness her reproach alone,

How shall I not, with reason, have her hate. When by thy knee I stand, she on thy love Looketh with bitter eyes of childlessness,— When thou must cast me off and cleave to her. Or honour me, and wreck thine household's peace? How oft the dagger and the deadly bowl Have women found to slay their lords withal! Nay, father, more—I pity this thy wife Who grows grey childless. 'Tis not worthy her, Sprung from proud sires—this curse of childlessness.

And sovranty, so oft, so falsely praised, Winsome its face is, but behind the veil Is torment. Who is happy, fortunate who, That, fearing violence, glancing aye askance, Weareth out life? Nay, rather would I live Happy-obscure, than be exalted prince,-One who must joy to have for friends the vile, Who hates the good, and ever dreads to die. "Ah," thou wilt say, "gold overbears all this, And wealth is sweet." Would I clutch lucregroan

Under its load, with curses in mine ears? Nay, wealth for me in measure, sorrowless.

But, father, hear what blessings here were mine:-First, leisure, dearest of delights to men: Friendly the folk; no villain jostleth me Out of the path: it galls the very soul To yield the pass, and vail to baser men. My life was prayer to Gods, converse with men, Ministrant unto joy and not to grief, Welcoming coming, speeding parting guests, A new face smiling still on faces new. And that which men, though loth, must ask in prayer,

CHORUS

Well hast thou said, so be that those I love In these thy words may find their happiness.

XUTHUS

Of this no more: but learn to bear thy fortune. For, where I found thee, there would I begin, By making thee a solemn public feast, And thy birth-sacrifice, not offered yet. Now to the feast as my guest bringing thee, I'll make thee cheer: then to the Athenians' land Bring thee as one that travelleth, not as mine. For, sooth, I have no heart to vex my wife With mine own bliss, while she is childless still. And I shall find a time to bring my queen To suffer thee to take my sceptred sway.

Ion I name thee, of that happy chance In that, as forth Apollo's shrine I came, First lighted I on thee. Now all thy friends To this glad feast of sacrifice gather thou, To bid, as leaving Delphi soon, farewell. You, handmaids, I command, speak not hereof. Death—if ye say to my wife anything!

ION

I go: yet to my fortune one things lacks:
For, save I find her who gave life to me,
My life is naught. If one prayer be vouchsafed,

CHORUS

O vision of tears, and of fierce heart-burning (Str.)
Breaking forth into shricks and the onrush of sighing,

When my lady beholdeth her chieftain returning In glory of fatherhood—knoweth that yearning Of childlessness waiteth her, hunger undying!

Seer-son of Latona, what strain hast thou chanted?

Whence came he, the waif in thy temple-porch lying ?

Thy fosterling—yea, but a mother yet wanted!

And the oracle stirreth mine heart to defying.

Of its tones with the whisper of treachery haunted.

I fear whereunto it will grow,
This fate thou hast caused us to know:
Too strange for my credence it is.
Child fathered of fortune and treason!
Child alien of blood!—it were reason
That all should cry yea unto this.

Friends, shall I bear to my lady the story? (Ant.)
Shall I speak in her ear, her lord's baseness revealing?

Whom she counted her all and in all—heretofore he Had share in her dreams of a yet-coming glory.

Now in woe is she whelmed, but his heart hath found healing, [strewing!

That he flouts the dear tresses and eld's silver- 700

Victory-songs to thy lyre dost thou chant! Ho, I call to thee, son

Born to Latona, Dispenser of Boding, on goldgleaming throne

Midmost of earth who art sitting:—thine ears shall be pierced with my moan' 910

Ah, ravisher-bridegroom thou!

What ailed thee to give to my spouse—
Requiting no service, I trow!—

A son to be heir to his house?

But my baby and thine, O heartless, was taken

For a prey of the eagles: long ere now

Were the swaddling-bands of his mother forsaken.

Thy Delos doth hate thee, thy bay-boughs abhor thee,
By the palm-tree of feathery frondage that rose
Where in sacred travail Latona bore thee
Unto Zeus for the fruit of her throes.

CHORUS

Ah me, what mighty treasure-house is opened Of sore affliction whereat all shall weep!

OLD SERVANT

Ah daughter, gazing on thy face I fill With pity: yea, my mind is all distraught. For, while one surge of ills yet drowns my soul, High rolls astern another from thy words. For, soon as thou hadst told thy present ills, Thou followedst the dark track of other woes.

Soon as Creusa's lord had left the fane
Of Phoebus, taking his new son with him
For that thanksgiving-feast and sacrifice,
Xuthus went up to where the Wine-god's fire
Leaps heavenward, to make wet with victims' blood
Dionysus' twin rocks for the son new-found;
And spake, "Abide now, son, and set thou up
A wide-embracing tent by craftsmen's toil.
If, sacrificing to the Birth-gods, long
I tarry, feast thy friends assembled there."

1130

So took the calves and went. And now the youth The unwalled pavilion's compass solemnly With tall masts reared, with good heed lest the sun Should dart therein his shafts of midnoon-flame, Or the slant javelin-gleams of dying day. A hundred feet he meted out foursquare,—Having for compass of its space within Ten thousand, as the cunning craftsmen say,—As bidding to the feast all Delphi's folk. With sacred tapestries from the treasuries He screened it, marvellous for men to see. First with a canopy of shawls he ceiled it, The offering of Zeus' son, which Hercules Brought to the God, the Amazonian spoils.

Therein were webs of woven blazonry:—
Heaven shepherding his stars in folds of air:
His steeds the Sun drave to their goal of fire,
After him drawing the bright Evening Star.
And sable-vestured Night with team of twain
Upfloated; and the stars companioned her.
The Pleiad swam her mid-sky path along,

And gave the chalice brimmed, first casting in The drug death-working, which our mistress gave. Men say, that her new son might leave the light. None marked ;—but as the god-discovered heir Raised with the rest the God's cup in his hand, He heard some servant speak a word unmeet. He, temple-reared, perfect in bodement-lore, Held it for ominous, bade fill up with wine Another bowl; that first drink-offering He cast to earth, and bade all do the like. Then fell a hush. With water brimmed we up And Bybline wine the sacred mixing-bowls.

Then midst our toils a flight of doves dropt down In the pavilion; for in Loxias' halls Unfrayed they dwell, and when men spilled the wine.

1200

The thirsty innocents dipped their beaks therein, And drew it down their dainty-feathered throats. And none the God's libation harmed—save one. Which lighted where the new heir spilled the wine. She sipped the drink—her dainty-feathered frame Quivered and staggered: an unmeaning scream 1 She shrilled of anguish · marvelled all the throng Of banqueters to see her agonies. One fierce convulsion—the pink claws uncramped;

1210

And she was dead. That child of prophecy Bared of his cloak his limbs, leapt o'er the board, Shouting "Who goeth about to murder me? Old man, declare !- thine was the eager zeal,-Yea, from thine hand did I receive the cup!" He clutched his withered arm, he searched him o'er To take the ancient in the very fact.

Detected, tortured, scarce even then he told
Creusa's desperate deed, the poison-plot.
Straightway, the feasters with him, hurries forth
The stripling given by Loxias' oracle,
Before the Pythian nobles stands, and cries,
"O hallowed land, by poison is my death
Sought of Erechtheus' child, the alien dame!"
Then Delphi's lords by general vote decreed
That from the precipice hurled my queen should die,
As compassing a priest's death, planning murder
Within the precinct. All the city seeks her
Who sped on wretched mission wretchedly.
Drawn by desire of babes to Phoebus' fane,
She hath lost her life and children therewithal.

CHORUS

There is no hiding-place from death for me,

None: woe is me, it is the end!

All is laid bare for all men's eyes to see—

The cup, the murder-blend

Of gouts of viper-blood swift for life's quelling,

Mid Bacchus' clusters shed;

Drink-offering—yea, to them in darkness dwelling,

Gods of the dead.

Ruin is my life's portion—ah, her doom '
Stones raining death upon my queen!

Oh had I wings, or could but plunge to gloom
Under the earth, to screen

Mine head from horror of the stones down-beating!

Oh, borne on four-horsed car,

To hear the hurrying hoofs!—to see waves fleeting Astern afar!

There is no hope,—except a God befriending Should snatch us from men's sight.

Ay, lest thou haply wait not, but slay me!

ION

Childless, dost grudge my father finding me?

CREUSA

What, shalt thou seize all childless parents' homes?

ION

Had I no part at least in my sire's wealth?

CREUSA

His wealth !-a shield and spear. Take that thine is.

ION

Hence !- leave the altar and the hallowed seat!

CREUSA

Lesson thy mother, wheresoe'er she be.

ION

Shalt thou not suffer, who wouldst murder me?

CREUSA

Yea-if thou dare to slay me mid the shrines.

ION

What joy hast thou mid Phoebus' wreaths to die?

1310

CREUSA

So shall I trouble Him who troubled me.

ION

Out upon this!

Shame, that a God ordained unrighteous laws For mortals, statutes not in wisdom framed!

Enter the PYTHIA, bearing a cradle, the contents of which are concealed by a wrapping which partially envelopes it.

PYTHIA

Forbear, my son. The seat of prophecy I leave, and step across this temple-fence, Priestess of Phoebus, chosen of Delphi's daughters To guard his tripod's immemorial use.

ION

Hail, dear my mother, though thou didst not bear me.

PYTHIA

So was I called; nor did the name mislike me.

PYTHIA

Thou shalt not err, thou. For the God's own sake I nursed thee, boy: these give I back to thee, Which his unspoken will then made me take And guard. Why thus he willed I cannot tell: But none of mortal men was ware that I Had these, nor hidden in what place they lay. Farewell for as a mother kiss I thee.

ION

Ah me, mine eyes are drowned in streaming tears,
As leaps my thought to that day when the bride
Betrayed, who bare, by stealth to thraldom sold me,
Nor ever suckled me: but nameless all
In the God's court I lived a servant's life.
Kind was the God's part, but my fortune's hand
Heavy; for while I should of right have lain
Soft in a mother's arms, and known life's joy,
Of a sweet mother's care was I bereft.

O hapless she who bare me, who hath suffered Like me, hath lost the joys of motherhood! But this ark will I bear unto the God, An offering—lest I find aught I would not. For, if perchance a slave-girl gave me birth, "Twere worse to find a mother than let be. Phoebus, I offer this unto thy fane . . . What ails me? Lo, I fight against the favour Of Him who saved for me my mother's tokens! This must I open, face what must be faced; For never can I overstep my doom.

Ah, sacred fillets, what have ye hid for me, O bands wherein mine heart's desire was kept? Lo, the enwrapping of the ark's fair curve, How by a miracle it waxed not old; The osier-plaitings mouldless!—yet long time Since then hath o'er these treasure-relics passed.

TON

O Fortune, thou that shiftest countless mortals Unto misfortune, and anon to weal, How nearly to this pass we came, that I Should slay my mother, should of her be slain! Ah strange!

Yet—midst the bright embraces of the sun Somewhere do such things day by day befall? Sweet, mother, is my treasure-trove of thee; And this my birth, I and no fault therein.

Yet somewhat would I say to thee apart.
Come hither: I would speak it in thine ear,
And fold about with darkness that thy past.
See to it, mother, lest thy steps have slipped,
As maids infatuate yield to love—to shame,
And upon Phoebus now thou chargest this,
And, striving to escape the shame of me,
Dost name the God my sire, who sire was none.

PRIISA

No!—by Athena, Lady of Victory, who At Zeus' side chariot-borne with Giants fought, No mortal man was sire to thee, my son, But he which reared thee, Loxias the King.

ION

Is the God true?—or doth his oracle lie? Mother, my soul it troubleth: well it may.

CREUSA

Hear now what cometh to my mind, my son;
Of kindness Loxias giveth thee a place
In a proud house: hadst thou been called his son,
Thou hadst had none inheritance thereof,
Nor a sire's name:—how couldst thou, when myself
Still hid his rape, yea, by thy secret death?
Thee for thy good to another sire he gives.

ION

Nay, not thus lightly on the quest I press. I will ask Phoebus, entering his fane, "Am I of Loxias, or a mortal sire?"

ATHENA appears above the temple in her chariot. Ha! high above the incense-breathing house What God reveals a face that fronts the Sun? Let us flee, mother, lest we gaze on Gods, Except in season meet for that great vision.

ATHENA

Fly not; no foe am I that ye should flee,
But, as in Athens, here am gracious-willed.
I come from thy land—land that bears my name:
I Pallas from Apollo speed in haste,
Who deigned not to reveal him to your sight,
Else must he chide you for things overpast,
But sendeth me to tell to you his words:—
Thee this queen bare, begotten of Apollo:
He gives to whom he gave, not that they gat thee,
But for thy bringing home to a princely house;
Then, when the matter was laid bare and told,
Fearing lest thou shouldst of her plot be slain,

And she of thee, saved thee by that device. Now the God would have kept the secret hid Until in Athens he revealed her thine, And thee the son of her and Phoebus born.

But—to make end and tell his oracles,
For which I yoked my chariot, hearken ye.
Take this thy son and go to Cecrops' land,
Creusa, and on thrones of sovereignty
Seat him; for, of Erechtheus' lineage sprung,
Worthy he is to rule o'er mine own land.
Famed shall he be through Hellas; for the sons
Born to him, even four from this one root,
Shall give their names unto the several tribes
Of the land's folk which dwell upon mine hill.

Geleon the first shall be; the second tribe
Hopletes; Argades the third: the fourth,
One tribe, of my shield named Aegicores.
And their sons in the fulness of the time
Shall found them cities in the Cyclad Isles,
And seaboard realms, for strength unto my land.
Yea, they shall people either mainland's plains
On either side the strait, of Asia-land
And Europe: and because of thy son's name
Ionians shall be named, and win renown.

From Xuthus too and thee a seed shall spring, Dorus, of whom shall Doris song-renowned Arise: the second goeth to Pelops' land, Achaeus; o'er the seaboard shall he reign Nigh Rhion, and the people of his name Among the nations shall be sealed therewith. ARGUMENT

HIPPOLYTA, Queen of the Amazons, bore to Theseus, king of Athens and Troezen, a son whom he named from her, Hippolytus. Now this youth grew up of all men most pure in heart, reverencing chiefly Artemis the Maiden, Goddess of the Chase, and utterly contemning the worship of Aphrodite. Wherefore the wrath of the Queen of Love was kindled against him, and she made Phaedra, his father's young wife, mad with love for him; and although she wrestled with her malady, and strove to hide it in her heart, till by the fever of it she was brought nigh to death's door, yet in the end it was revealed, and was made destruction to her and to Hippolytus also.

Mighty on earth, mighty in heaven, am I Cypris the Goddess named, a glorious name. And of all dwellers 'twixt the Pontic Sea And Atlas' bourn, which look on the sun's light, I honour them which reverence my power, But bring the proud hearts that defy me low. For even to the Gods this appertains, That in the homage of mankind they joy. And I will give swift proof of these my words: For Theseus' son, born of the Amazon, 10 Hippolytus, pure-hearted Pittheus' ward, Sole mid the folk of this Troezenian land Saveth that vilest of the Gods am I; Rejects the couch; of marriage will he none, But honours Phoebus' sister Artemis. Zeus' child, and counts her greatest of the Gods; And through the greenwood in the Maid's train still With swift hounds sweeps the wild beasts from the earth Linked with companionship too high for man. 20 Yet this I grudge not: what is this to me? But his defiance of me will I avenge Upon Hippolytus this day: the path Well-nigh is cleared; scant pains it needeth yet.

For, as from halls of Pittheus once he sought Pandion's land, to see and to be sealed In the Great Mysteries, Phaedra, high-born wife Of his own father, saw him; and her heart In fierce love was enthralled by my device.

She, ere she came to this Troezenian land, Hard by the Rock of Pallas, which looks down 30 On this land, built to me a shrine, for love Of one afar; and for Hippolytus' sake She named it "Love Fast-anchored," for all time. But since from Cecrops' land forth Theseus passed. Fleeing the blood-guilt of the sons of Pallas, And unto this shore with his wife hath sailed. Submitting unto exile for one year, Thenceforward, sighing and by stings of love Distraught, the hapless one wastes down to death Silent: her malady no handmaid knows. 40 Ah, but not so shall this love's issue fall. Theseus shall know this thing; all bared shall be: And him that is my foe his sire shall slay By curses, whose fulfilment the Sea-king Poseidon gave to Theseus in this boon-To ask three things of him, nor pray in vain. And she shall die—O yea, her name unstained, Yet Phaedra dies: I will not so regard Her pain, as not to visit on my foes Such penalty as is mine honour's due. 50

But,—forasmuch as Theseus' son I see Yonder draw near, forsaking hunting's toil, Hippolytus,—forth will I from this place. Ha, a great press of henchmen following shout, Honouring with songs the Goddess Artemis!

HIPPOLYTUS

From far I greet her, who am undefiled.

SERVANT

Worshipful is she, glorious among men.

HIPPOLYTUS

Of Gods, of men, each maketh still his choice.

SERVANT

Now prosper thou; -be needful wisdom thine!

HIPPOLYTUS

No God who hath night-homage pleaseth me.

SERVANT

Guerdons of Gods, my son, ought men to use.

Depart, mine henchmen, enter ye the halls,
And set on bread. The full board welcome is
When hunting's done. And one must groom mysteeds,
That I may yoke them to the chariot-pole,
Being full of meat, and breathe them in the race.
But to thy Cypris wave I long farewell. [Exit.

SERVANT

But we—who must not tread in steps of youth—With whispered humbleness most meet for thralls Make supplication to thine images, Queen Cypris. It beseems thee to forgive, If one that bears through youth a vehement heart Speak folly. Be as though thou heardest not; For wiser Gods should be than mortal men. For the plunging urns their founts outstreaming: Even there did I light on a maiden, my friend, As she drenched the mantles purple-gleaming In the riverward-glittering spray,
And spread the dye of the Tyrian shell on the rocks where glowing the sunbeams fell.
Hers were the lips that I first heard say
How wasteth our lady away:	130
(Ant. 1)
For a tale they told of a fevered bed, of the feet that forth of her bower ne'er tread,
Of the dainty-woven veil that is cast
For a darkness over the tresses golden.
Yea, and by this hath the third day past [holden
That the queen from her fair young lips hath with-
The gift of the Lady of Corn,
Keeping her body thereof unfed, as though 'twere pollution to taste of bread,
With anguish unuttered longing forlorn
One haven to win—death's bourn.	140
O queen, what if this be possession (Str. 2)
Of Pan or of Hecate?—
Of the Mother of Dindymus' Hill?—
Or the awful Corybant thrill?
Or hath Artemis found transgression
Of offerings unrendered in thee? [here?— Hath the hand of the Huntress been
For she flasheth o'er mountain and mere,
And rideth her triumph-procession	150

Thy fancy hath caught.

Better be sick than tend the sick:

Here is but one pain; grief of mind

And toil of hands be there combined.

O'er all man's life woes gather thick;

Ne'er from its travail respite is.

If better life beyond be found,
The darkness veils, clouds wrap it round;
Therefore infatuate-fond to this

We cling—this earth's poor sunshine-gleam:
Naught know we of the life to come,
There speak no voices from the tomb:
We drift on fable's shadowy stream.

PHAEDRA

Uplift ye my body, mine head upraise.

Friends, faint be my limbs, and unknit be their bands.

If thine high-born courage in calm strength rise:
For the doom of sorrow on all men lies.

To the forest, the pines where the stag-hounds follow

Hard after the fleet dappled hinds as they fly me!
Oh, I long to cheer them with hunter's hollo,—
Ah God, were I there!—

And to grasp the Thessalian shaft steel-gleaming,
And to swing it on high by my hair outstreaming—
My golden hair!

What speech in thy frenzy outflingest thou?

The mountain-ward path then fain hadst thou taken

On the track of the beasts: and thou yearnest now For the steeds on the sea-sands wave-forsaken! Of a surety the lore of a seer we lack To tell what God, child, reineth thee back, And scourgeth thy spirit from reason's track.

PHAEDRA

O hapless I—what is this I have done?
Whitherward have I wandered from wisdom's way? 240
I was mad, by a God's curse overthrown.

Oh ill-starred—well-a-day! Dear Nurse, veil over mine head once more;

For I blush for the words from my lips that came.

Veil me: the tears from mine eyes down pour,
And mine eyelids sink for shame.

For anguish wakes when re-dawneth the mind: Though a curse be madness, herein is it kind, That the soul that it ruins it striketh blind.

NURSE

I veil thee:—ah that death would veil
Me too!—with many a lesson stern
The years have brought, this too I learn—
Be links of mortal friendship frail!

Let heart-strings ne'er together cling,
Nor be indissolubly twined
The chords of love, but lightly joined
For knitting close or severing.

Ah weary burden, where one soul Travails for twain, as mine for thee!

But thou—dost not constrain her, strive to learn Her malady and wandering of her wit?

All have I tried, and naught the more availed. Yet will I not even now abate my zeal: So stand thou by and witness unto me How true am I to mine afflicted lords.

Come, darling child, the words said heretofore Forget we both; more gracious-souled be thou: Thy lowering brow, thy wayward mood, put by; And I, wherein I erred in following thee, Refrain, and unto wiser counsels seek. If thy disease be that thou mayst not name. Lo women here to allay thy malady. But if to men thy trouble may be told, Speak, that to leeches this may be declared. Ha, silent?—silence, child, beseems thee not. Or thou shouldst chide me if I speak not well, Or unto pleadings wisely uttered yield. One word!—look hitherward!...ah, woe is me! Women, we toil and spend our strength for naught, And still are far as ever: of my words Unmelted was she then, nor hearkeneth now.

Howbeit know thou—then be waywarder
Than is the sea,—thy death shall but betray
Thy sons, who shall not share their father's halls—
No, by that chariot-queen, the Amazon,
Who bare to thy sons a bastard over-lord,—
Not bastard-thoughted,—well thou knowest him,

And thou, sad sister, Dionysus' bride 1.

NURSE

What ails thee, child?—dost thou revile thy kin?

340

And I the third-how am I misery-wrecked!

NURSE

I am 'wildered all—whereunto tend thy words?

To the rock that wrecks us all, yea, from of old.

NURSE

None the more know I that I fain would know.

PHAEDRA

Ah, couldst thou say for me what I must say!

No seer am I to interpret hidden things.

PHAEDRA

What mean they when they speak of this—to love?

The sweetest thing, my child—the bitterest too.

PHAEDRA

For me, the second only have I proved.

NURSE

What say'st thou?—child, thou lovest—oh, what man?

Woe, child! What wilt thou say? Thou hast dealt me death!

Friends, 'tis past bearing. I will not endure
To live. O hateful life, loathed light to see!
I'll cast away, yield up, my frame, be rid
Of life by death! Farewell, I am no more.
The virtuous love—not willingly, yet love
The evil. Sure no Goddess Cypris is,
But, if it may be, something more than God,
Who hath ruined her, and me, and all this house.

CHORUS

(Str. to 669-79)

Hast thou heard?—the unspeakable tale hast thou hearkened.

The wail of my lady's anguish-throe?
O may I die, ah me! ere I know,
Dear lady, a spirit as thine so darkened.

O misery-burdened, O whelmed in woe!
O troubles that cradle the children of men!
Undone!—all's bared to the daylight's ken.

Ah, weariful season for thee remaining!

Dark looms o'er the household the shadow of doom. 370 Plain now where the star of thy love is waning,
O hapless daughter of Crete's proud home!

Yet practise not the lesson, some from sloth,
And some preferring pleasure in the stead
(If duty. Pleasures many of life there be;
Long gossip, idlesse,—pleasant evils they;
And sense of shame—twofold: no ill the one,
But one bows homes to ruin. Were men's choice clear,

These twain had never borne the selfsame names.

Forasmuch then as I knew this before,
No philtre-spell was like to change mine heart
To make me fall away from this my faith.
Thee will I tell the path my reason trod;—
When love's wound smote me, straight I cast about
How best to bear it: wherefore I began
Thenceforth to hush my moan, to veil my pang.
For the tongue none may trust, which knoweth well
To lesson rebel thoughts of other men,
Yet harboureth countless evils of its own.
Then did I take thought nobly to endure
My folly, triumphing by self-control.

Lastly, when even so I naught availed
To o'ermaster Love's Queen, I resolved to die
As of all counsels best—let none gainsay!
For be it mine to do not good unseen,
Nor ill before a cloud of witnesses.
I knew the deed, the very pang, was shame.
Well knew I too what 'tis to be a woman—
None trust, none love us! Curses upon her
Who showed the way the first to shame the couch
With alien men! Ah, 'twas from princely homes
That first this curse on womankind had birth.
For, when the noble count their shame their good,
The lowly sure will hold it honourable.

And O, I hate the continent-professed Which treasure secret recklessness of shame. How can they, O Queen Cypris, Sea-born One, Look ever in the faces of their lords, Nor shudder lest their dark accomplice, night, And their own bowers may utter forth a voice?

Me—friends, 'tis even this dooms me to die,
That never I be found to shame my lord,
Nor the sons whom I bare: but free, with tongues
Unfettered, flourish they, their home yon burg
Of glorious Athens, blushing ne'er for me.
For this cows man, how, stout of heart soe'er,
To know a father's or a mother's sin.
And this alone can breast the shocks of life,
An honest heart and good, in whomso found:
But in his hour Time lifts his mirror, and shows
The vile his vileness there, as a girl sees
Her face. With such may I be never found.

CHORUS

Lo now, how fair is virtue everywhere, Which yieldeth fruit of good repute mid men!

NURSE

Queen, thine affliction, suddenly revealed But now, wrought in me terrible dismay.
Yet I discern my folly now. 'Tis strange How second thoughts for men are wisest still. Thine is the common lot, not past cool weighing: The Goddess's passion-bolts have smitten thee. For Cypris crusheth, swooping in her might; Yet gently stealeth she on whoso yield. But whom she findeth wayward, arrogant-souled, She graspeth, mocketh, past imagining. Whose have scrolls writ in the ancient days, And wander still themselves by paths of song, They know how Zeus of yore desired the embrace Of Semele; they know how radiant Dawn Up to the Gods snatched Cephalus of yore, And all for love; yet these in Heaven their home Dwell, neither do they flee the face of Gods, Content, I trow, to be love's vanquished ones.

Thou—wilt not yield? Thy sire by several treaty
Thee should have gotten, or with other Gods
For lords, if thou wilt bow not to these laws.
How many men, think'st thou, and wise men they,
Knowing their beds dishonoured, shut their eyes?
How many a father in his son's transgression
Playeth love's go-between?—the maxim this
Of wise men, that dishonour be not seen.
Why should men toil to over-perfect life?
Lo, even thine hall's roof beams the craftsman's rule
Can make not utter-true. How thinkest thou,
Who art plunged in fate's deep sea, to swim to land?
Tush—if more good than evil is in thee,
Who art but human, thou shalt do full well.

O Eros, O Eros, how melts love's yearning (Str. 1)
From thine eyes, when thy sweet spell witcheth
the heart [thy might!
Of them against whom thou hast marched in
Not me, not me for mine hurt do thou smite,
My life's heart-music to discord turning.
For never so hotly the flame-spears dart,

Nor so fleet are the star-shot arrows of light,
As the shaft from thy fingers that speedeth its flight,
[burning,

As the flame of the Love-queen's bolts fierce-O Eros, the child of Zeus who art!

In vain, O in vain by Alpheus the river (Ant. 1)
And in Phoebus's Pythian shrine hath the land
Of Hellas the blood of her oxen outpoured.
But Eros, but Love, who is all men's lord,
Unto whom Aphrodite is wont to deliver
Her keys, that the doors be unsealed by his hand
Of her holy of holies, we have not adored,
Though he marcheth through ruin victory-ward,
Though he raineth calamity forth of his quiver
On mortals against his on-coming that stand.

When Cypris the dear yoke of home had disparted, Like a bacchanal fiend out of hell that had darted, And with blood, and with smoke of a palace flame-wasted, [chanted, And with death-shrieks for hymns at her bridal-feast By Love's Queen to the son of Alcmena was granted— Woe, woe for the joys of espousal she tasted!	550
And ye, O ye ramparts of hallowed Thebe, (Ant. 2) And ye lips wave-welling of Dirce, might ye be Witness how dire was the Love-queen's coming, When a slumber that knoweth not waking was given Of her spells by the flame-enfolded levin To the mother of Zeus' seed Bacchus: for dooming Of death had she blent with the bride-chant's singing. O, the Dread One breatheth on all life, winging Softly her flight as a bee low-humming. [Voices within]	560

Why hast thou given a home beneath the sun, Zeus, unto woman, specious curse to man? For, were thy will to raise a mortal seed, This ought they not of women to have gotten, But in thy temples should they lay its price, Or gold, or iron, or a weight of bronze, And so buy seed of children, every man After the worth of that his gift, and dwell Free in free homes unyexed of womankind.

620

But now—soon as we go about to bring
This bane to the home, we hurl to earth its weal.
Hereby is woman proved a grievous curse—
He, who begat and reared her, banishes,
Yea, adds a dower, to rid him of his bane;
While he which taketh home the noisome weed
Rejoices, decks with goodly bravery
The loathly image, and tricks out with robes,—
Filching away, poor wretch! his household's wealth.
He may not choose: who getteth noble kin
With her, content must stomach his sour feast:
Who getteth a good wife, but worthless kin,
Must muffle up the evil 'neath the good.

That folly by the short-weight of her wit.

Handmaids should ne'er have had access to wives, But brutes, with teeth, no tongue, should dwell with them.

That so they might not speak to any one. Nor win an answering word from such as these. But now the vile ones weave vile plots within, And out of doors their handmaids bear the web: As thou hast come, foul quean, to tender me Commerce in mine own father's sacred couch!— Words that with fountain-streams I'll wash away. Sluicing mine ears. How should I be so vile, Who even with hearing count myself defiled? Woman, I fear God: know, that saveth thee. For, had I not by oaths been trapped unwares. I had ne'er forborne to tell this to my sire. Now from mine home, while Theseus yet is far, I go, and I will keep my lips from speech. But—with my father I return, to see How thou wilt meet his eye, thou and thy mistress, And so have taste of thy full shamelessness.

Curse ye! My woman-hate shall ne'er be sated, Not though one say that this is all my theme: For they be ever strangely steeped in sin. Let some one now stand forth and prove them chaste.

Or leave me free to trample on them ever. [Exit. CHORUS

But thou wouldst not forbear. I shall not now
Even die unshamed! (A pause)

Some new plea must I find. For yonder boy with soul keen-edged with wrath Shall to his sire accuse me of thy sin, Shall tell to aged Pittheus my mischance, Shall blaze the shameful tale through every land. Curses on thee, and whose thrusteth in To do base service to unwilling friends!

O white-winged galley from Crete's far shore, Whose keel over deep-sea surges speeding, Through their flying brine and their battle-roar, Onward and onward my lady bore. From a bliss-fraught palace a princess leading To the joy of a bridal of woe exceeding!-

For, a bird ill-boding, thy sail flitted o'er

With the curse of the Cretan land unto Athens' glorious strand,

Till the seafarers lashed to the beach Munychian the hawser-band.

And sprang unto earth's firm floor.

Wherefore, with love-pangs all unblest (Ant. 2)For her gift, entered in Aphrodite, wringing Her heart-strings asunder, a fearful guest. CHORUS

No more I know, for to thine halls but now, Theseus, I came, o'er these thine ills to mourn.

THESEUS

Woe! with these wreathed leaves why is mine head Crowned—ill-starred harbinger of oracles? Shoot back the bolts, my servants, of the doors: Loose bars, that I may see this bitter sight, My wife, who hath destroyed me by her death.

The palace is thrown open, and the corpse of PHAEDRA disclosed, with her handmaids grouped round it.

CHORUS

Woe for thy misery! Woe for thine ills, who hast suffered and wrought

Such a thing as in ruin shall whelm thine home!

Ah for thy desperate deed, who by violence unhallowed hast sought [wrestler hast caught!

Ha!

What is this tablet, what, to her dear hand Fastened? Would'st fain speak some word unsaid? Now hath she writ, unhappy one, to pray Touching my marriage or my children aught? Fear not, lost love: the woman is not born Shall lie in Theseus' couch, or tread his halls. Lo, how the impress of the carven gold Of her that is no more smiles up at me! Come, let me uncoil the seal's envelopings, And see what would this tablet say to me.

No more within my lips' gates will I pen
The horror that chokes utterance—O my people,
Hippolytus hath dared assail my bed
With violence, flouting Zeus's awful eye!
Father Poseidon, thou didst promise me
Three curses once. Do thou with one of these Destroy my son: may he not 'scape this day,
If soothfast curses thou hast granted me.

CHORUS

Oh, for the Gods' sake, King, recall this prayer! Thou yet shalt know thine error: yield to me.

THESEUS

Never! Yea, I will drive him from the land; And, of two dooms, with one shall he be scourged:— Either Poseidon, reverencing my prayers, Shall slay and speed him unto Hades' halls, Or, banished from this land, a vagabond On strange shores shall he drain life's bitter dregs.

HIPPOLYTUS

Father, I heard thy crying, and I came
In haste: yet for what cause thou makest moan
I know not, but of thee I fain would hear.
Ha! what is this? Father, thy wife I see
Dead!—matter this for marvel passing great.
But now I*left her, who upon this light
Looked, it is not yet a long season since.
What hath befallen her? How perished she?
Father, I fain would learn it from thy mouth.
Silent! In trouble silence naught avails.
The heart that yearns to know all cares of thine
Fain shall be found to prove thy troubles too.
Sure, from thy friends—yea, and thy more than friends.

Father, it is not right to hide thy griefs.

THESEUS

O men that ofttimes err, and err in vain, Why are ye teaching ever arts untold, And search out manifold inventions still, But one thing know not, no, have never sought it, To teach them wit, in whom no wisdom dwells?

HIPPOLYTUS

A cunning sage were this, endued with power To force them to be wise who are witless all! But—so ill-timed thy speculations are—Father, I fear thy tongue for grief runs wild.

THESEUS

Out! There should dwell in men some certain test Of friendship, a discerner of the heart, To show who is true friend and who is false. Yea, all men should have had two several voices, One honest, one—as chance or interest swayed;

HIPPOLYTUS

How?—to thine ear hath some friend slandered me, That I the innocent am in evil case? Astonied am I, for thy words amaze me, Thus wandering wide astray from reason's throne.

THESEUS

Out on man's heart !—to what depths will it sink? Where shall assurance end and hardihood? For if it swell with every generation, And the new age reach heights of villainy Above the old, the Gods must needs create A new earth unto this, that room be found For the unrighteous and unjust in grain. Look on this man, who, though he be my son, Hath shamed my couch, and shall be manifest proved Most vile, by testimony of the dead.

HIPPOLYTUS covers his face in horror.

Nay, show thy face—since thou hast come to this, This foulness,—look thy father in the face!
Dost thou with Gods—O thou no common man!—
Consort? Art thou the chaste, the stainless one?
I will not trust thy boasts, for so should I
Impute to Gods unwisdom's ignorance.
Now vaunt, ay now!—set out thy paltry wares
Of lifeless food: 1 take Orpheus for thy king;
Rave, worship vapourings of many a scroll:
For ah, thou'rt caught! I warn all men to shun
Such hypocrites as this; for they hunt souls
With canting words, the while they plot foul sin.

¹ Abstinence from animal food was a feature of the ascetic doctrines attributed to Orpheus, as of those of Pythagoras.

But now—by Zeus Oath-warden, by Earth's plain,
Swear I, I ne'er attempted couch of thine,
No, nor had wished it, nor had dreamed thereof.
God grant I perish nameless, fameless all,
Cityless, homeless, exile, vagabond
On earth,—may sea for land receive my corpse
When I am dead, if I be this vile thing!
Now if through fear she flung away her life
I know not. More I cannot sinless say.
Her honour by dishonour did she guard:
I, in a sore strait, cleave to honour still.

CHORUS

Thou hast said enough to turn this charge from thee, Tendering the oath of Gods, the awful pledge.

For, if my son thou wert, and I thy sire,
I had slain thee: exile should not be thy mulct,
If on my wife thou hadst dared to lay a hand.

How perished he? In what way did the gin Of justice snap on him who wrought me shame?

MESSENGER

We, hard beside the beach that greets the surf, With combs were smoothing out his horses' manes Weeping: for word had come to us to say That no more in this land Hippolytus Might walk, of thee to wretched exile doomed. Then came he, bringing the same tale of tears To us upon the strand: a countless throng Of friends his age-mates following with him came. But, ceasing at the last from moan, he cried: "Why rave I thus? I must obey my sire. Harness the horses to the chariot-yoke, My thralls: this city is no more for me."

Then, then did every man bestir himself. Swifter than one could say it were the steeds Harnessed, and by our lord's side set we them. Then the reins caught he from the chariot-rail, And in the car's foot-rests set firm his feet. But to the Gods first stretched his hands and cried: 1190 "Zeus, may I die if I a villain am!

May my sire know that he is wronging me, When I am dead, if not while I see light!" Then in his hand he took the scourge and smote At once the steeds. We henchmen by the car Fast by the reins attended on our lord Towards Argos straight and Epidauria.

And, as we entered on a desert tract. Beyond this Troezen's border lies a beach Sloping full down to you Saronic Sea. There from earth's womb a noise like Zeus's thunder βαρὺν βρόμον μεθῆκε φρικώδη κλύειν ὀρθὸν δὲ κρᾶτ' ἔστησαν οὖς τ' ἐς οὐρανὸν ἵπποι· παρ' ἡμῖν δ' ἦν φόβος νεανικὸς πόθεν ποτ' εἴη φθόγγος. εἰς δ' ἀλιρρόθους ἀκτὰς ἀποβλέψαντες ἱερὸν εἴδομεν κῦμ' οὐρανῷ στηρίζον, ὥστ' ἀφηρέθη Σκείρωνος ἀκτὰς ὅμμα τοὐμὸν εἰσορᾶν· ἔκρυπτε δ' Ἰσθκὸν καὶ πέτραν ᾿Ασκληπιοῦ.

Made muffled roaring, a blood-curdling sound.
Then the steeds lifted head and pricked the ear;
And thrilled through us most vehement dismay
Whence might the sound be. To the sea-lashed shores

Then glanced we, and a surge unearthly saw Up-columned to the sky, that from my sight Shrouded was all the beach Scironian: Veiled was the Isthmus and Asclepius' Crag. Then swelling higher, higher, and spurting forth 1210 All round a cloud of foam and sea-blown spray, Shoreward it rusheth, toward the four-horse car. Then from the breaker's midst and hugest surge The wave belched forth a bull, a monster fierce, With whose throat-thunder all the land was filled, And echoed awfully, as on our gaze He burst, a sight more dread than eyes could bear. Straightway wild panic falleth on the steeds: Yet their lord, wholly conversant with wont Of horses, caught the reins in both his hands, 1220 And tugs, as shipman tugs against the oar, Throwing his body's weight against the reins. But on the fire-forged bits they clenched their teeth, And whirled him on o'ermastered, recking not Of steering hand, or curb, or strong car's weight. And if, yet holding to the chariot-helm, Toward the smooth ground he strove to guide their course.

Aye showed that bull in front, to turn them back, Maddening with fright the fourfold chariot-team. If toward the rocks they rushed with frenzied heart, 12 Fast by the rail in silence followed he On, till he fouled and overset the car, Dashing against a rock the chariot-felly.

Then all was turmoil: upward leapt in air
Naves of the wheels and linchpins of the axles.
And he, unhappy, tangled in the reins,
Bound in indissoluble bonds, is haled
Dashing his head against the cruel rocks,
Rending his flesh, outshrieking piteous cries—
"O stay, ye horses nurtured at my cribs,
Destroy me not!—ah, father's curse ill-starred!
Will no one save an utter-innocent man?"
Ah, many willed, but far behind were left
With feet outstripped. Loosed from the toils at last

Of clean-cut reins,—I know not in what wise,— He falls, yet breathing for short space of life. Vanished the steeds and that accursed monster, The bull, mid rock-strewn ground, I know not where.

Thrall am I verily of thine house, O king; Howbeit so foul a charge—I never can Believe it of thy son, that he is vile, Not though all womankind should hang themselves, Though one should fill with writing every pine In Ida:—he is righteous, this I know.

ARTEMIS

Thou high-born scion of Aegeus, I call upon thee: Theseus, give ear unto me.

It is Artemis, Leto's Daughter, that nameth thy name:

Why dost thou joy in thy shame, [moved Who hast murdered thy son unrighteously, thereto By the lies of thy wife unproved? [found.

Ruin and wrack in the sight of the sun hast thou
How wilt thou hide underground

Thy dishonour in hell, or upsoaring mid clouds, veil there

Thy life of remorse and despair?
For the part that was erstwhile thine in the good man's lot,

Behold, it is not. Theseus, hear thou the posture of thy woes:-Yet have I no help for thee, only pain; But I have come to show the righteousness Of thy son, that in fair fame he may die, And thy wife's fever-flame,—yet in some sort She, stung by goads of her Her nobleness. Whom we, who joy in purity, abhor Most of all Gods, was lovesick for thy son. Her reason fought her passion, and she died Through schemes wherein she had no part: her nurse Told under oath-seal to thy son her pangs: He, even as was righteous, would not heed The tempting; no, nor when sore-wronged of thee Broke he the oath's pledge, for he feared the Gods. But she, adread to be of sin convict, Wrote that false writing, and by treachery so Destroyed thy son:—and thou believedst her!

THESEUS

Ah me!

ARTEMIS

Is it torture, Theseus?—Nay, but hear me out,
That hearing all thou mayst the more lament.
Thy sire's sure curses three—rememberest them?
One hast thou thus misused, O villain thou,
Against thy son, which might have quelled a foe!
Thy sire the Sea-king, in his love's despite,
Gave as he needs must, seeing he had pledged him:

Yet wicked in his eyes and mine art thou, Who wouldst not wait for proof, nor prophet's voice, Nor yet make inquisition, nor let time Slowly reveal all, but with criminal haste Didst hurl the curse upon thy son, and slay.

THESEUS

Queen, ruin seize me!

ARTEMIS

Deep thy sin: but yet
Even thou for this mayst win forgiveness still:
For Cypris willed that all this should befall
To glut her spite. And this the Gods' wont is:
None doth presume to thwart the fixed design
Willed by his fellow: still aloof we stand.
Else be thou sure that, but for dread of Zeus,
I never would have known this depth of shame,
To suffer one, of all men best beloved
Of me, to die. But thy transgression, first,
Thine ignorance from utter sin redeems;
Then, by her death thy wife made void all test
Of these her words, and won thy credence so.
Now, most on thee this storm of woe hath burst;

Of his father's own erring:—
Ah Zeus, hast thou seen?
Innocent I, ever fearing the Gods, who was wholly heart-clean

Above all men beside,— Lo, how am I thrust Unto Hades, to hide My life in the dust!

All vainly I reverenced God, and in vain unto man was I just.

Let the stricken one be !—
Ah, mine anguish again !—
Give ye sleep unto me,
Death-salve for my pain,

The sleep of the sword for the wretched—I long, oh I long to be slain.

Dire curse of my father!— Sins, long ago wrought Of mine ancestors, gather: Their doom tarries not,

But the scourge overfloweth the innocent—wherefore on me is it brought?

Ah for words of a spell,
That my soul might take flight
From the tortures, with fell
Unrelentings that smite!

1 1462-66 allude to the death of Pericles, which happened shortly before the representation of this play. The poet in fact changed, to meet the occasion, the original ending, which ran thus :-

O blest one, what honours have fallen to thee,

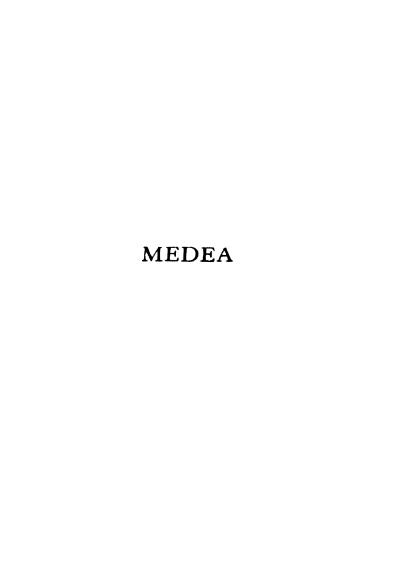

O hero, because of thy chastity;

Never shall aught be more of worth

Than virtue unto the sons of earth;

For soon or late on the fear of God Goodly reward shall be bestowed.

[Stobaeus, Florilegium.]

ARGUMENT

WHEN the Heroes, who sailed in the ship Argo to bring home the Golden Fleece, came to the land of Colchis, they found that to win that treasure was a deed passing the might of mortal man, so terribly was it guarded by monsters magical, even fire-breathing bulls and an unsleeping dragon. But Aphrodite caused Medea the sorceress, daughter of Aeetes the king of the land, to love Jason their captain, so that by her magic he overcame the bulls and the dragon. Then Jason took the Fleece, and Medea withal, for that he had pledged him to wed her in the land of Greece. But as they fled, Absyrtus her brother pursued them with a host of war, yet by Medea's devising was he slain. So they came to the land of Iolcos, and to Pelias, who held the kingdom which was Jason's of right. But Medea by her magic wrought upon Pelias' daughters so that they slew their father. Yet by reason of men's horror of the deed might not Jason and Medea abide in the land, and they came to Corinth. But there all men rejoiced for the coming of a hero so mighty in war and a lady renowned for wisdom unearthly, for that Medea was grandchild of the Sungod. But after ten years, Creon the king of the land spake to Jason, saying, "Lo, I will give thee my daughter to wife, and thou shalt reign after me, if thou wilt put away thy wife Medea; but her and her two sons will I banish from the land." So Jason consented. And of this befell things strange and awful, which are told herein.

Would God that Argo's hull had never flown
Through those blue Clashing Rocks to Colchisland.

Nor that the axe-hewn hine in Pelion's glens Ever had fallen, nor filled with oars the hands Of hero-princes, who at Pelias' hest Quested the Golden Fleece! My mistress then, Medea, ne'er had sailed to Iolcos' towers With love for Jason thrilled through all her soul, Nor had on Pelias' daughters wrought to slay Their sire, nor now in this Corinthian land Dwelt with her lord and children, gladdening By this her exile them whose land received her, Yea, and in all things serving Jason's weal, Which is the chief salvation of the home, When wife stands not at variance with her lord.

Now all is hatred: love is sickness-stricken. For Jason, traitor to his babes and her, My mistress, weddeth with a child of kings, Daughter of Creon ruler of the land. And, slighted thus, Medea, hapless wife, Cries on the oaths, invokes that mightiest pledge Of the right hand, and calls the Gods to witness What recompense from Jason she receives. Flung down, she weeps and wastes through all the days
Since first she knew her lord's wrong done to her,
Never uplifting eye, nor turning ever
From earth her face. No more than rock or sea-wave
Hearkeneth she to friends that counsel her;
Saving at whiles, when, lifting her white neck,	30
To herself she wails her father once beloved,
Her land, her home, forsaking which she came
Hither with him who holds her now contemned.
Alas for her! she knows, by affliction taught,
How good is fatherland unforfeited.
She loathes her babes, joys not beholding them.
And what she may devise I dread to think.
Grim is her spirit, one that will not brook
Mishandling: yea, I know her, and I fear
Lest to her bridal bower she softly steal,	40
And through her own heart thrust the whetted knife,
Or slay the king and him that weds his child,
And get herself some doom yet worse thereby;
For dangerous is she: who begins a feud
With her, not soon shall sing the triumph-song.
But lo, her boys, their racing-sport put by,
Draw near, all careless of their mother's wrongs,
For the young heart loves not to brood in grief.
Enter CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN, with boys.

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN

Ceaseth not yet the hapless one from moan?

NURSE

Cease!-her pain scarce begun, far from its height! 60

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN

Ah fool!—if one may say it of his lords—Little she knoweth of the latest blow.

NURSE

What is it, ancient? Grudge not thou to tell me.

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN

Naught: I repent me of the word that 'scaped me.

NURSE

Nay, by thy beard, hide not from fellow-thrall—Silence, if need be, will I keep thereof.

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN

I heard one saying—feigning not to hear,
As I drew near the old stone seats, where sit
The ancients round Peirene's hallowed fount,—
"Creon, this land's lord, is at point to banish Mother and sons from soil Corinthian."
Howbeit, if the tale I heard be true
I know not: fain were I it were not so.

NURSE

Will Jason brook such dealing with his sons, Though from their mother he be wholly estranged?

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN

Old bonds of love are aye outrun by feet Of new:—no friend is he unto this house.

What man is not? Hast learnt this only now, That no man loves his neighbour as himself? Good cause have some, with most'tis greed of gain—As here: their sire for a bride's sake loves not these.

NURSE

Pass in, dear children, for it shall be well. But thou, keep these apart to the uttermost: Bring them not nigh their mother angry-soulcd. For late I saw her glare, as glares a bull, On these, as 'twere for mischief; nor her wrath, I know, shall cease, until its lightning strike. To foes may she work ill, and not to friends!

Never minstrel by music hath breathed on them
Nor by song with his harp-notes in harmony blending;
Albeit thereof cometh death's dark ending
Unto many a home that is wrecked by these.

And yet were it surely a boon to bring healing

And the banquet itself hath a glamour, concealing
From mortals their doom, flinging spells over pain.

Unto Hellas far over the boundless sea.

Corinthian dames, I have come forth my doors
Lest ye condemn me. Many I know are held
Mis-proud—some, since they shrink from public gaze;
Some, from their bearing to their fellow-men;
Some quiet lives for indolence are defamed;
For justice dwells not in the eyes of man,
Who, ere he hath discerned his neighbour's heart,
Hates him at sight, albeit nowise wronged.

A stranger must conform to the city's wont; Nor citizens uncondemned may flout their fellows, Like mannerless churls, a law unto themselves.

But me—the blow ye wot of suddenly fell Soul-shattering. 'Tis my ruin: I have lost All grace of life: I long to die, O friends. He, to know whom well was mine all in all, My lord, of all men basest hath become! Surely, of creatures that have life and wit, We women are of all unhappiest, Who, first, must buy, as buys the highest bidder, A husband—nay, we do but win for our lives A master! Deeper depth of wrong is this. Here too is dire risk—will the lord we gain Be evil or good? Divorce?—'tis infamy To us: we may not even reject a suitor!

Then, coming to new customs, habits new,
One need be a seer, to know the thing unlearnt
At home, what manner of man her mate shall be.
And if we learn our lesson, if our lord
Dwell with us, plunging not against the yoke,
Happy our lot is; else—no help but death.
For the man, when the home-yoke galls his neck,
Goes forth, to ease a weary sickened heart
By turning to some friend, some kindred soul:
We to one heart alone can look for comfort.

But ah, thy story is not one with mine!
Thine is this city, thine a father's home,
Thine bliss of life and fellowship of friends;
But I, lone, cityless, and outraged thus
Of him who kidnapped me from foreign shores,
Mother nor brother have I, kinsman none,
For port of refuge from calamity.
Wherefore I fain would win of thee this boon:—
If any path be found me, or device,
Whereby to avenge these wrongs upon mine husband,

260

On her who weds, on him who gives the bride, Keep silence. Woman quails at every peril, Faint-heart to face the fray and look on steel; But when in wedlock-rights she suffers wrong, No spirit more bloodthirsty shall be found.

CHORUS

This will I; for 'tis just that thou, Medea, Requite thy lord: no marvel thou dost grieve. But I see Creon, ruler of this land, Advancing, herald of some new decree.

Enter CREON.

Black-lowering woman, wroth against thy lord, Medea, forth this land I bid thee fare An exile, taking thy two sons with thee; And make no tarrying: daysman of this cause Am I, and homeward go I not again Ere from the land's bounds I have cast thee forth.

Yet, howso wronged, one question will I ask—For what cause, Creon, dost thou banish me?

CREON

I fear thee—need is none to cloak my words— Lest thou wreak cureless vengeance on my child. And to this dread do many things conspire: Wise art thou, cunning in much evil lore; Chafed art thou, of thine husband's couch bereft: I hear thou threatenest, so they bring me word, To wreak on sire, on bridegroom, and on bride Mischief. I guard mine head ere falls the blow. Better be hated, woman, now of thee, Than once relent, and sorely groan too late.

290

MEDEA

Not now first, Creon,—many a time ere now Rumour hath wronged and wrought me grievous harm.

Ne'er should the man whose heart is sound of wit

Let teach his sons more wisdom than the herd. They are burdened with unprofitable lore, And spite and envy of other folk they earn. For, if thou bring strange wisdom unto dullards, Useless shalt thou be counted, and not wise: And, if thy fame outshine those heretofore Held wise, thou shalt be odious in men's eyes. Myself too in this fortune am partaker. Of some my wisdom wins me jealousy, Some count me spiritless; outlandish some; Unsocial some. Yet no deep lore is mine. And thou, thou fear'st me, lest I work thee harm.

Yet one thing bars the way—if I be found Crossing the threshold of the house and plotting, Die shall I mid the mocking laughter of foes.

Best the sure path, wherein my nature's cunning Excels, by poisons to destroy them—yea.

Now, grant them dead: what city will receive me,

What host vouchsafe a land of refuge, home
Secure, and from the avenger shield my life?
There is none. Tarrying then a little space,
If any tower of safety shall appear,
These deaths by guile and silence will I compass;
But if misfortune drive me desperate forth,
Myself will grip the sword,—yea, though I die,— Aud slay, and dare the strong hand's reckless deed.

Ah, by the Queen of Night, whom I revere Above all, and for fellow-worker chose, Hecate, dweller by mine hearth's dark shrine, None, none shall vex my soul, and rue it not. Bitter and woeful bridal will I give them, Bitter troth-plight and banishing of me.

390

Up then!—spare naught of all thy sorcery-lore, Medea, of thy plotting and contriving; On to the dread deed! Now is need of daring. Look on thy wrongs: thou must not make derision For sons of Sisyphus, for Jason's bride,—
Thou, sprung from royal father, from the Sun!
Thou know'st the means. I prove me woman indeed!

Men say we are most helpless for all good, But of dark deeds most cunning fashioners.

For I shall ease the burden of mine heart Reviling thee, and thou be galled to hear. And with the first things first will I begin. I saved thee: this knows every son of Greece That stepped with thee aboard thine Argo's hull. Thee, sent to quell the flame-outbreathing bulls With voke-bands, and to sow the tilth of death. The dragon, warder of the Fleece of Gold, 480 That sleepless kept it with his manifold coils, I slew, and raised deliverance-light for thee. Of a base man, thus frustrate of mine hopes!
Come, as a friend will I commune with thee—
Yet what fair dealing should I hope from thee?—
Yet will I: questioned, baser shalt thou show.
Now, whither turn I?—to my father's house,
My land?—which I betrayed, to flee with thee!
To Pelias' hapless daughters? Graciously
Their father's slayer would they welcome home!
For thus it is—a foe am I become
To mine own house: no quarrel I had with those
With whom I have now a death-feud, for thy sake.

For all this hast thou made me passing-blest Midst Hellas' daughters! Oh, in thee have I—O wretched I!—a wondrous spouse and leal, Since from the land cast forth I pass to exile Forlorn of friends, alone with children lone. A proud reproach for our new bridegroom this—"In poverty his babes, his saviour, wander!"O Zeus, ah wherefore hast thou given to men Plain signs for gold which is but counterfeit, But no assay-mark nature-graven shows On man's form, to discern the base withal?

CHORUS

Awful and past all healing is that wrath When they that once loved clash in feud of hate.

JASON

Needs must I be not ill at speech, meseems, But, like the careful helmsman of a ship, With close-reefed canvas run before the gale, Woman, of thy tempestuous-railing tongue. I—for thy kindness tower-high thou pilest—Deem Cypris saviour of my voyaging,

Her, and none other or of Gods or men. Thou art subtle of wit—nay, but ungenerous It were to tell how Love, by strong compulsion Of shafts unerring, made thee save my life. Yet take I not account too strict thereof; For, in that thou didst save me, thou didst well. Howbeit, more hast thou received than given From my deliverance, as my words shall prove :--First, then, in Hellas dwell'st thou, in the stead Of land barbaric, knowest justice, learnest To live by law without respect of force; And all the Greeks have heard thy wisdom's fame. Renown is thine; but if on earth's far bourn Thou dwelledst yet, thou hadst not lived in story. Now mine be neither gold mine halls within, Nor sweeter song be mine than Orpheus sang, If my fair fortune be to fame unknown.

Thus far of my great labours have I spoken,—
This challenge to debate didst thou fling down:—
But, for thy railings on my royal marriage,
Herein will I show, first, that wise I was;
Then, temperate; third, to thee the best of friends

And to my children—nay, but hear me out.

When I came hither from Iolcos-land
With many a desperate fortune in my train,
What happier treasure-trove could I have found
Than to wed—I, an exile—with a princess?
Not—where it galls thee—loathing couch of thine,
And for a new bride smitten with desire,
Nor eager I to multiply mine offspring:—
Suffice these born to me: no fault in them:
But that—this chiefly—we might live in honour,

And be not straitened,—for I know full well
How all friends from the poor man stand aloof,—
And I might nurture as beseems mine house
Our sons, and to these born of thee beget
Brethren, and, knitting in one family all, Live happy days. Thou, what wouldst thou of children?
But me it profits through sons to be born

But me it profits, through sons to be born
To help the living. Have I planned so ill?
Not thou wouldst say it, save for jealousy's sting.

But ye—ye women—so unreasoning are That, wedlock-rights untrespassed-on, all's well; But, if once your sole tenure be infringed, With the best, fairest lot are ye at feud Most bitter. Would that mortals otherwise Could get them babes, that womankind were not, And so no curse had lighted upon men.

bride

With my consent, not hid it from thy friends.

Thou know'st not what good fortune thou hast found;
For I will end thy childlessness, will cause

Thy seed to grow to sons; such charms I know.

AEGEUS

For many causes am I minded, lady,
This grace to grant thee: for the Gods' sake first;
Then, for thy promise of a seed of sons;
For herein Aegeus' name is like to die.
But thus it is—if to my land thou come,
I will protect thee all I can: my right
Is this; but I forewarn thee of one thing—
Not from this land to lead thee I consent;
But, if thou reachest of thyself mine halls,
Safe shalt thou bide; to none will I yield thee.
But from this land thou must thyself escape;

MEDEA

So be it. Yet, were oath-pledge given for this To me, then had I all I would of thee.

' AEGEUS

Ha, dost not trust me?—or at what dost stumble?

MEDEA

I trust thee; but my foes are Pelias' house
And Creon. Oath-bound, thou couldst never yield me
To these, when they would drag me from the land.
Hadst thou but promised, to the Gods unpledged,
Thou mightest turn their friend, might'st lightly yield

O Zeus, Zeus' daughter Justice, Light of the Sun!

Over my foes triumphant now, my friends, Shall we become: our feet are on the path Now is there hope of vengeance on my foes. For this man, there where my chief weakness lay, Hath for my plots a haven in storm appeared. To him my bark's stern-hawser make I fast, 770 Γo Pallas' burg and fortress when I go. And all my plots to thee will I tell now; Nor look I that my words should pleasure thee:-One of mine household will I send to Jason. And will entreat him to my sight to come; And soft words, when he cometh, will I speak, Saying, "Thy will is mine," and, "It is well"; Saying, his royal marriage, my betrayal, Is our advantage, and right well devised. I will petition that my sons may stay— 780 Not for that I would leave on hostile soil Children of mine for foes to trample on, But the king's daughter so by guile to slay. For I will send them bearing gifts in hand Unto the bride, that they may not be banished, A robe fine-spun, a golden diadem. If she receive and don mine ornaments. Die shall she wretchedly, and all who touch her; With drugs so dread will I anoint my gifts. Howbeit here I pass this story by. 790 And wail the deed that yet for me remains

Then, having brought all Jason's house to wrack, I leave the land, fleeing my dear babes' blood, And having dared a deed most impious. For unendurable are mocks of foes. Let all go: what is life to me? Nor country Nor home have I, nor refuge from mine ills. Then erred I, in the day when I forsook My father's halls, by you Greek's words beguiled, Who with God's help shall render me requital. For never living shall he see henceforth The sons I bare him, nor shall he beget A son of his new bride, that wretch foredoomed In agony to die by drugs of mine. And with my lord, who works my veriest good, Wedding a royal house, to raise up brethren Unto my sons? Shall I not cease from wrath? What aileth me, when the Gods proffer boons? Have I not children? Know I not that we 880 Are exiles from our own land, lacking friends?" Thus musing, was I ware that I had nursed Folly exceeding, anger without cause. Now then I praise thee: wise thou seem'st to me In gaining us this kinship, senseless I, Who in these counsels should have been thine ally. Have furthered all, have decked the bridal couch, And joyed to minister unto the bride. But we are—women: needs not harsher word. Yet shouldst thou not for evil render evil. 890 Nor pit against my folly folly of thine. I yield, confessing mine unwisdom then, But unto better counsels now am come. Lady, I praise this mood, yet blame not that:
'Tis nothing strange that womankind should rage
When the spouse trafficketh in alien marriage.
But now to better thoughts thine heart hath turned,
And thou, though late, hast seen which policy
Must win: a prudent woman's part is this.
And for you, children, not unheedfully
Your sire hath ta'en much forethought, so help

For ye, I ween, in this Corinthian land
Shall with your brethren stand the foremost yet.
Grow ye in strength: the rest shall by your sire,
And whatso God is gracious, be wrought out.
You may I see to goodly stature grown,

Blessings shall hers be, not one, but untold, Who winneth theé for lord, a peerless spouse, Who owneth ornaments which once the Sun, My father's father, to his offspring gave!

Enter handmaid with casket.

Take in your hands, my sons, these bridal gifts, And to the happy princess-bride bear ye And give-my gifts she shall not lightly esteem!

But, fond one, why make void thine hands of these? Deem'st thou a royal house hath lack of robes, Or gold, deem'st thou? Keep these and give them not. For, if my wife esteems me aught, my wish Will she prefer to treasures, well I wot.

Nay, speak not so: gifts sway the Gods, they say. Gold weigheth more with men than countless words. Hers fortune is: God favoureth now her cause— Young, and a queen! Life would I give for ransom Of my sons' banishment, not gold alone. Now, children, enter ye the halls of wealth. Unto your sire's new wife, my lady-queen, 970 Make supplication, pray ye be not exiled, And give mine ornaments—most importeth this, That she in her own hands receive my gifts. Haste ye, and to your mother bring glad tidings Of good success in that she longs to win.

Exeunt JASON and CHILDREN.

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN

Mistress, remission for thy sons of exile! Thy gifts the princess-bride with joy received In hand; and there is peace unto thy sons. Ha!

Why dost thou stand confounded mid good hap? Now wherefore turnest thou thy face away, And dost not hear with gladness this my speech?

MEDEA

Woe's me!

This cry is to the tidings not attuned.

MEDEA

Woe yet again!

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN
Can I have brought ill hap
Unwitting—erred in deeming these glad tidings?

MEDEA

As they are, are thy tidings: thee I blame not.

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN

Why down-drooped is thine eye? Why flow thy tears?

MEDEA

Needs must they, ancient; for these things the Gods And I withal—O fool!—have ill contrived.

CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN

Fear not: thy children yet shall bring thee home.

Exit CHILDREN'S GUARDIAN.

O children, children, yours a city is, And yours a home, where, leaving wretched me, Ye shall abide, for ever motherless! I shall go exiled to another land, Ere I have joyed in you, have seen your bliss, Ere I have decked for you the couch, the bride. The bridal bower, and held the torch on high. O me accurst in this my desperate mood! For naught, for naught, my babes, I nurtured you, And all for naught I laboured, travail-worn, Bearing sharp anguish in your hour of birth. Ah for the hopes—unhappy!—all mine hopes Of ministering hands about mine age, Of dying folded round with loving arms, All men's desire! But now—'tis past—'tis past, That sweet imagining! Forlorn of you A bitter life and woeful shall I waste. Your mother never more with loving eyes Shall ye behold, passed to another life. Woe! woe! why gaze your eyes on me, my darlings? 1040

1030

Why smile to me the latest smile of all? Alas! what shall I do? Mine heart is failing As I behold the light in my sons' eyes! Women, I cannot! farewell, purposes O'erpast! I take my children from the land. What need to wring their father's heart with ills Of these, to gain myself ills twice so many? Not I, not I! Ye purposes, farewell! Yet—yet—what ails me? Would I earn derision,

Full oft ere this my soul hath scaled Lone heights of thought, empyreal steeps, Or plunged far down the darkling deeps, Where woman's feebler heart hath failed:-

Yet wherefore failed? Should woman find No inspiration thrill her breast, Nor welcome ever that sweet guest Of Song, that uttereth Wisdom's mind?

Alas! not all! Few, few are they,— Perchance amid a thousand one Thou shouldest find.—for whom the sun Of poesy makes an inner day.

Now this I say—calm bliss, that ne'er Knew love's wild fever of the blood, The pains, the joys, of motherhood, Passeth all parents' joy-blent care.

The childless, they that never prove If sunshine comes, or cloud, to men With babes-far lie beyond their ken The toils, the griefs, of parent-love.

One toils with love more strong than death:
Yet—yet—who knoweth whether he
A wise man or a fool shall be
To whom he shall his wealth bequeath?

But last, but worst, remains to tell:

For though ye get you wealth enow,
And though your sons to manhood grow,
Fair sons and good:—if Death the fell,

To Hades vanishing, bears down
Your children's lives, what profit is
That Heaven hath laid, with all else, this
Upon mankind, lone sorrow's crown?

And ere their father Far from her bower with those thy sons had gone, She took the rich-wrought robes and clad herself, Circling her ringlets with the golden crown, And by a shining mirror ranged her tresses, Smiling at her own phantom image there. Then, rising from her seat, adown the halls She paced with mincing tread of ivory feet, Exulting in the gifts, and oftentimes Sweeping her glance from neck to ankle-hem. Then a long cry of horror, not of prayer,

To tell the bride's affliction: all the roof
Echoed with multitudinous-hurrying feet.
And a swift athlete's straining limbs had paced
By this the full length of the furlong course,
When she from trance all speechless of closed eyes
In anguish woke with horrible-shrilling shriek;
For like two charging hosts her torment came:
The golden coil about her head that lay

'Gan spurt a marvellous stream of ravening fire: The delicate robes, the gift thy children brought. Had fangs to gnaw her delicate tortured flesh! Upstarting from her seat she flees, all flame, Shaking her hair, her head, this way and that, To cast from her the crown; but firmly fixed The gold held fast its grip: the fire, whene'er She shook her locks, with doubled fury blazed. Then agony-vanguished falls she on the floor. Marred past all knowledge, save for a father's eyes. No more was seen her eyes' imperial calm, No more her comely features; but the gore Dripped from her head's crown flecked with blended

The flesh-flakes from her bones, like the pine's tears, 1200 'Neath that mysterious drug's devourings melted,— Dread sight !-- and came on all folk fear to touch The corpse: her hideous fate had we for warning.

But, ignorant of all, her wretched sire, Suddenly entering, falls upon her corpse, And straightway wailed and clasped the body round, And kissed it, crying, "O my hapless child, What God thus horribly hath thee destroyed? Who maketh this old sepulchre bereft Of thee? Ah me, would I might die with thee!" But when from wailing and from moans he ceased, Fain would he have upraised his aged frame, Yet clave, as ivy clings to laurel boughs. To the filmy robes: then was a ghastly wrestling; For, while he strained to upraise his knee, she seemed

To upwrithe and grip him: if by force he haled, Torn from the very bones was his old flesh. Life's light at last quenched, he gave up the ghost,

Ill-starred, down-sinking 'neath destruction's sea.

There lie the corpses, child by grey old sire 1220

Clasped;—such affliction tears, not words, must mourn.

And of thy part no word be said by me:—
Thyself from punishment wilt find escape.
But man's lot now, as oft, I count a shadow,
Nor fear to say that such as seem to be
In wit most keen of men, most subtle of speech,
Even these pay heaviest penalty of all;
For among mortals happy man is none.
In fortune's flood-tide might a man become
More prosperous than his neighbour: happy?—no!

[Exit.

CHORUS

Fortune, meseems, with many an ill this day Doth compass Jason,—yea, and rightfully. But O the pity of thy calamity, Daughter of Creon, who to Hades' halls Hast passed, because with thee would Jason wed!

MEDEA

Friends, my resolve is taken, with all speed
To slay my children, and to flee this land,
And not to linger and to yield my sons
To death by other hands more merciless.
They needs must die: and, since it needs must be,
Even I will give them death, who gave them life.
Up, gird thee for the fray, mine heart! Why loiter
To do the dread ill deeds that must be done?
Come, wretched hand of mine, grasp thou the sword;
Grasp!—on to the starting-point of a blasted life!
Oh, turn not craven!—think not on thy babes,
How dear they are, how thou didst bear them: nay,
For this short day do thou forget thy sons,

Thus hast thou wrought, yet look'st thou on the sun
And earth, who hast dared a deed most impious?
Now ruin seize thee!—clear I see, who saw not
Then, when from halls and land barbarian
To a Greek home I bare thee, utter bane,
Traitress to sire and land that nurtured thee!

To this man, and the mother of my sons,

For wedlock-right's sake hast thou murdered them.

There is no Grecian woman that had dared

This:—yet I stooped to marry thee, good sooth,

Rather than these, a hateful bride and fell,

A tigress, not a woman, harbouring

A fiercer nature than Tyrrhenian Scylla.

But—for untold revilings would not sting

Thee, in thy nature is such hardihood:—

Avaunt, thou miscreant stained with thy babes'

ARGUMENT

Apollo, being banished for a season from Olympus, and condemned to do service to a mortal, became herdman of Admetus, King of Pherae in Thessaly. Yet he loathed not his earthly taskmaster, but loved him, for that he was a just man, and hospitable exceedingly. Wherefore he obtained from the Fates this boon for Admelus, that, when his hour of death should come, they should accept in ransom for his life the life of whosoever should have before consented to die in his stead. Now when this was made known, none of them which were nearest by blood to the king would promise to be his ransom in that day. Then Alcestis his wife, the daughter of Pelias King of Iolcos, pledged her to die for him. Of her love she did it, and for the honour of nifehood. And the years passed by, and the tale was told in many lands; and all men praised Alcestis, but Admetus bore a burden of sorrow, for day by day she became dearer to him, a wife wholly true, a mother most loving, and a lady to her thralls gentle exceedingly. But when it was known by tokens that the day was come, Admetus repented him sorely, but it availed not, for no mortal may recall a pledge once given to the Gods. And on that day there came to the palace Apollo to plead with Death for Alcestis' sake; and a company of Elders of Pherae, to ask of her state and to make mourning for her. And when she was dead, ere she was borne forth to burial, came Hercules, son of Zeus, in his journeying, seeking the guest's right of meat and lodging, but not knowing aught of that which had come to pass. Of him was a great deliverance wrought, which is told herein.

Halls of Admetus, hail! I stooped my pride Here to brook fare of serfs, yea I, a God! The fault was fault of Zeus: he slew my son Asclepius—hurled the levin through his heart. Wroth for the dead, his smiths of heavenly fire, The Cyclopes, I slew; for blood-atonement Allfather made me serf to a mortal man

To this land came I, tended mine host's kine,
And warded still his house unto this day.
Righteous myself, I found a righteous man,
The son of Pheres: him I snatched from death,
Cozening the Fates: the Sisters promised me—
"Admetus shall escape the imminent death
If he for ransom gives another life."
To all he went—all near and dear,—and asked
Father and grey-haired mother who gave him life;

But, save his wife, found none that would consent For him to die and never more see light. Now in his arms upborne within yon home She gaspeth forth her life: for on this day Her weird it is to die and fleet from life. I, lest pollution taint me in their house, Go forth of yonder hall's beloved roof. [Enter DEATH. Lo, yonder Death;—I see him nigh at hand,

Me hast thou slain, Me only: loth to fail thee and my lord 180 I die; but thee another bride shall own, Not more true-hearted; happier perchance." Then falls thereon, and kisses: all the bed Is watered with the flood of melting eyes. But having wept her fill of many tears, Drooping she goeth, reeling from the couch; Yet oft, as forth the bower she passed, returned, And flung herself again upon the bed. And the babes, clinging to their mother's robes, Were weeping; and she clasped them in her 190 arms,

Fondling now this, now that, as one death-doomed. And all the servants 'neath the roof were weeping, Pitying their lady. But to each she stretched Her right hand forth; and none there was so

Bitterness passing the anguish of death!
Forsake me not now, by the Gods I implore thee.
By the babes thou wilt orphan, O yield not thy

Look up, be of cheer: if thou diest, before me
Is nothingness. Living, we are live thine,
And we die in thy death; for our hearts are a shrine
Wherein for thy love passing word we adore thee!

ALCESTIS

Admetus,—for thou seëst all my plight,—

I would, have dwelt wealth-crowned in princely halls;

Yet would not live on, torn away from thee. With orphaned children: wherefore spared I not The gifts of youth still mine, wherein I joyed. Yet she that bare, he that begat, forsook thee, 290 Though fair for death their time of life was come, Yea, fair, to save their son and die renowned. Their only one wert thou: no hope there was To get them sons thereafter, hadst thou died. So had I lived, and thou, to after days: Thou wert not groaning, of thy wife bereaved, Thy children motherless. Howbeit this Some God hath brought to pass: it was to be. So be it. Remember thou what thank is due For this,—I never can ask full requital; 300 For naught there is more precious than the life,— And justly due; for these thy babes thou lovest No less than I, if that thine heart be right. Suffer that they have lordship in mine home: Wed not a stepdame to supplant our babes, Whose heart shall tell her she is no Alcestis, Whose jealous hand shall smite them, thine and mine. Do not, ah, do not this—I pray thee, I!

Do not, ah, do not this—I pray thee, I!

For the new stepdame hateth still the babes
Of her that's gone with more than viper-venom.
The boy—his father is his tower of strength
To whom to speak, of whom to win reply;
But, O my child, what girlhood will be thine?
To thee what would she be, thy father's yoke-mate?
What if with ill report she smirched thy name,
And in thy youth's flower marred thy marriagehopes?

And thou, little maiden, my sister, the burden hast taken, hast taken,
Which thy brother may bear not alone, and a weariful lot shall be thine.

Of father, of long-living love was thy marriage uncherished, uncherished:
Thou hast won not the goal of old age with the love of thy youth at thy side;
For, or ever she came to the fulness of days, she hath perished, hath perished;
And the home is a wreck and a ruin, for thou, O my mother, hast died!

CHORUS

Admetus, this affliction must thou bear. Not first of mortals thou, nor thou the last Hast lost a noble wife; and, be thou sure, From us, from all, this debt is due—to die.

ADMETUS

I know it: nowise unforeseen this ill 420 Hath swooped on me: long anguished I foreknew it. But—for to burial must I bear my dead— Stay ve, and, tarrying, echo back my wail To that dark God whom no drink-offerings move. And all Thessalians over whom I rule I bid take part in mourning for this woman With shaven head and sable-shrouding robe. And ye which yoke the cars four-horsed, or steeds Of single frontlet, shear with steel their manes. Music of flutes the city through, or lyres, 430 Be none, while twelve moons round their circles out: For dearer dead, or kinder unto me I shall not bury: worthy of mine honour Is she, for she alone hath died for me. Exit with attendants bearing in the corpse.

CHORUS
O Pelias' daughter, I hail thee: (Str. 1)
I wave thee eternal farewell
To thine home where the darkness must veil thee,
Where in Hades unsunned thou shalt dwell.
Know, Dark-haired, thy grey Spirit-wafter
Hath sped not with twy-plashing oar	440
Woman nobler, nor shall speed hereafter
To Acheron's shore.
For the seven-stringed shell, or for pæan (Ant. 1)

Unharped, shall thy fame be a song,
When o'er Sparta the moon Carnean
High rideth the whole night long.

And in Athens the wealthy and splendid Shall thy name on her bards' lips ring;
Such a theme hast thou left to be blended
With the lays that they sing.

O that the power were but in me, (Str. 2)
From the chambers of Hades, to light,
And from streams of Cocytus, to win thee
With the oar of the River of Night!
O dear among women, strong-hearted
From Hades to ransom thy lord!
Never spirit in such wise departed.
Light lie on thee, Lady, the sward!
And, if ever thine husband shall mate him
Again with a bride in thy stead,
I will loathe him, his children shall hate him,
The babes of the dead.

Halls thronged of the guests ever welcome, O dwelling
Of a hero, for ever the home of the free,
The Lord of the lyre-strings sweet beyond telling,
Apollo, hath deigned to sojourn in thee.
Amid thine habitations, a shepherd of sheep,
The flocks of Admetus he scorned not to keep,
While the shepherds' bridal-strains, soft-swelling
From his pipe, pealed over the slant-sloped lea.

And the spotted lynxes for joy of thy singing
Mixed with thy flocks; and from Othrys' dell

Trooped tawny lions: the witchery-winging
Notes brought dancing around thy shell,

Of the tall-tressed pines tripping forth to the meadow,
Beating time to the chime of the rapture-ringing
Music, with light feet tranced by its spell.

In act to fall, all hail! May bliss be thine
Even in Hades. Thus to wed, I say,
Profiteth men—or nothing-worth is marriage.

ADMETUS

Not bidden of me to her burial comest thou,
Nor count I thine the presence of a friend.
Thine ornaments she never shall put on;
She shall be buried needing naught of thine.
Thou grieve!—thou shouldst have grieved in my death-hour!

Thou stood'st aloof—the old, didst leave the young To die:—and wilt thou wail upon this corpse? Wast thou not, then, true father of my body? Did she that said she bare me, and was called Mother, not give me birth? Of bondman blood To thy wife's breast was I brought privily? Put to the test, thou showedst who thou art, And I account me not thy true-born son. Peerless of men in soulless cowardice! So old, and standing on the verge of life, Thou hadst no will, no heart hadst thou to die For thine own son! Ye let her die, a woman Not of our house, whom I with righteous cause

ὦ παῖ, τίν' αὐχεῖς, πότερα Λυδὸν ἡ Φρύγα κακοῖς ἐλαύνειν ἀργυρώνητον σέθεν;

Might count alone my mother and my father. Yet here was honour, hadst thou dared the strife, In dying for thy son. A paltry space To cling to life in any wise was left. Then had I lived, and she, through days to come, Nor I, left lorn, should thus mine ills bemoan. Yet all that may the fortunate betide Fell to thy lot; in manhood's prime a king, Me hadst thou son and heir unto thine house, So that thou wast not, dying, like to leave A childless home for stranger folk to spoil.

Nor canst thou say that flouting thy grey hairs I had giv'n thee up to death, whose reverence For thee was passing word:—and this the thank That thou and she that bare me render me! Wherefore, make haste: beget thee other sons To foster thy grey hairs, to compass thee With death's observance, and lay out thy corpse. Not I with this mine hand will bury thee. For thee dead am I. If I see the light,—Another saviour found,—I call me son To him, and loving fosterer of his age. With false lips pray the old for death's release, Plaining of age and weary-wearing time. Let death draw near—who hails his coming? None: No more is eld a burden unto them.

CHORUS

O hush! Suffice the affliction at the doors. O son, infuriate not thy father's soul.

Bought with thy money?—thus beratest thou?

SERVANT

Full many a guest, from many a land which came Unto Admetus' dwelling, have I known, Have set before them meat: but never guest More pestilent received I to this hearth: 750Who first, albeit he saw my master mourning, Entered, and passed the threshold unashamed: Then, nowise courteously received the fare Found with us, though our woeful plight he knew, But, what we brought not, hectoring bade us bring. The ivy cup uplifts he in his hands, And swills the darkling mother's fiery blood, Till the wine's flame enwrapped him, heating him. Then did he wreathe his head with myrtle sprays, Dissonant-howling. Diverse strains were heard: 760 For he sang on, regardless all of ills Darkening Admetus' house; we servants went Our mistress: yet we showed not to the guest Eyes tear-bedewed, for so Admetus bade. And now within the house must I be feasting This guest,—a lawless thief, a bandit rogue, While forth the house she is borne! I followed not.

Nor stretched the hand, nor wailed unto my mistress Farewell, who was to me and all the household A mother; for from ills untold she saved us, 770 Assuaging her lord's wrath. Do I not well To loathe this guest, intruder on our griefs?

Ho, fellow, why this solemn brooding look? The servant should not lower upon the guest, But welcome him with kindly-beaming cheer. Thou, seeing here in presence thy lord's friend, With visage sour and cloud of knitted brows Receiv'st him, fretting o'er an alien grief. Hither to me, that wiser thou mayst grow. The lot of man—its nature knowest thou? I trow not: how shouldst thou? Give ear to me.

From all mankind the debt of death is due, Nor of all mortals is there one that knows If through the coming morrow he shall live: For trackless is the way of fortune's feet, Not to be taught, nor won by art of man. This hearing then, and learning it from me, Make merry, drink: the life from day to day Account thine own, all else in fortune's power.

790

Honour withal the sweetest of the Gods
To men, the Cyprian Queen—a gracious Goddess!
Away with other thoughts, and heed my words,
If thou dost think I speak wise words and true:
So think I. Hence with sorrow overwrought;
Rise above this affliction: drink with me,
Thy brows with garlands bound. Full well I wot,
From all this lowering spirit prison-pent
Thine anchor shall Sir Beaker's plash upheave.
What, man!—the mortal must be mortal-minded.
So, for your solemn wights of knitted brows,
For each and all,—if thou for judge wilt take me,—
Life is not truly life, but mere affliction.

Drear halls full of yearning
For the lost—ah me!

What aim or what rest have I?—silence or speech, of what help shall they be?

Would God I were dead!
O, I came from the womb
To a destiny dread!
Ah, those in the tomb—

O, how can I tread
Thy threshold, fair home?
How shelter mine head
'Neath thy roof, now the doom
Of my fate's dice changeth?—ah me, what change upon all things is come!
For with torches aflame
Of the Pelian pine,
And with bride-song I came
In that hour divine,
Upbearing the hand of a wife—thine hand, O
darling mine!
Followed revellers, raising
Acclaim: ever broke
From the lips of them praising,
Of the dead as they spoke,
And of me, how the noble, the children of kings,
Love joined 'neath his yoke.	920
But for bridal song
Is the wail for the dead,
And, for white-robed throng,
Black vesture hath led Me to halls where the ghost of delight lieth couched on a desolate bed.

Not as mounds of the dead which have died, so account we the tomb of thy bride;
But O, let the worship and honour that we render to Gods rest upon her:

Unto her let the wayfarer pray.

As he treadeth the pathway that trendeth Aside from the highway, and bendeth At her shrine, he shall say:

"Her life for her lord's was given;
With the Blest now abides she on high. Hail, Queen, show us grace from thine heaven!"

Even so shall they cry.

But lo, Alcmena's son, as seemeth, yonder, Admetus, to thine hearth is journeying. Enter HERCULES, leading a woman wholly veiled.

HERCULES

Unto a friend behoveth speech outspoken,
Admetus, not to hide within the breast
Murmurs unvoiced. I came mid thine affliction:
Fair claim was mine to rank amidst thy friends:
Thou told'st me not how lay thy wife a corpse;
Thou gavest me guest-welcome in thine home,
Making pretence of mourning for a stranger.

I wreathed mine head, I spilled unto the Gods Drink-offerings in a stricken house, even thine. I blame thee, thus mishandled, yea, I blame; Yet nowise is my will to gall thy grief.

But wherefore hither turning back I come, This will I tell. Take, guard for me this maid, Till, leading hitherward the Thracian mares, I come from slaughter of Bistonia's lord. But if I fall—no, no! I must return!— I give her then, for service of thine halls. Prize of hard toil unto mine hands she came: For certain men I found but now arraying An athlete-strife, toil-worthy, for all comers, Whence I have won and bring this victor's meed.

Horses there were for them to take which won The light foot's triumph; but for hero-strife, Boxing and wrestling, oxen were the guerdon; A woman made it richer. Shame it seemed To hap thereon, and slip this glorious gain. But, as I said, this woman be thy care; For no thief's prize, but toil-achieved, I bring her. Yea, one day thou perchance shalt say 'twas well.

ADMETUS

Not flouting thee, nor counting among foes, My wife's unhappy fate I hid from thee. But this had been but grief uppiled on grief, Hadst thou sped hence to be another's guest; And mine own ills sufficed me to bewail. You maid—I pray thee, if it may be, prince, Bid some Thessalian ward her, who hath not Suffered as I: thou hast many friends in Pherae, Oh, waken not remembrance of my grief!

I could not, seeing her mine halls within,
Be tearless: add not hurt unto mine hurt;
Burdened enough am I by mine affliction.
Nay, in mine house where should a young maid lodge?—

For vesture and adorning speak her young:—What, 'neath the men's roof shall her lodging be? And how unsullied, dwelling with young men? Not easy is it, Hercules, to curb
The young: herein do I take thought for thee.
Or shall I ope to her my dead wife's bower?
How!—cause her to usurp my lost love's bed?
Twofold reproach I dread—first, from my folk,
Lest any say that, traitor to my saviour,
I fall upon another woman's bed;
Then, from my dead wife—oh, she is reverence-

Then, from my dead wife—oh, she is reverenceworthy!—

Of her must I be heedful. Woman, thou, Whoso thou art, know that thy body's stature Is as Alcestis, and thy form as hers. Ah me !—lead, for the Gods' sake, from my sight This woman! Take not my captivity captive. For, as I look on her, methinks I see My wife: she stirs mine heart with turmoil: fountains Of tears burst from mine eyes. O wretched I! I?—false to her, though dead?—may I die first!

HERCULES

Receive this woman then these halls within.

ADMETUS

Nay !—I implore thee by thy father Zeus!

HERCULES

Yet shalt thou err if thou do not this thing.

ADMETUS

Yet shall mine heart be tortured, if I do it.

1100

HERCULES

Yield thou: this grace may prove perchance a duty.

ADMETUS

O that in strife thou ne'er hadst won this maid!

HERCULES

Yet thy friend's victory is surely thine.

ADMETUS

Well said: yet let the woman hence depart.

HERCULES

Yet one day shalt thou praise me: only yield.

ADMETUS (to attendants)

Lead ye her, if mine halls must needs receive.

1110

HERCULES

Nay, to no servants' hands will I commit her.

ADMETUS

Thou lead her in then, if it seems thee good.

HERCULES

Nay, but in thine hands will I place her—thine.

ADMETUS

I will not touch her! Open stand my doors.

HERCULES

Unto thy right hand only trust I her.

ADMETUS

King, thou dost force me, sore against my will!

HERCULES

Be strong: stretch forth thine hand and touch thy guest.

ADMETUS (turning his face away)

I do, as one who doth behead a Gorgon.

Or doth some god-sent mockery-joy distract me?

HERCULES

Not so; but this thou seëst is thy wife.

ADMETUS

What if this be some phantom from the shades?

HERCULES

No ghost-upraiser hast thou ta'en for guest.

ADMETUS

O scion nobly-born of Zeus most high, Blessings on thee! The Father who begat thee Keep thee! Thou only hast restored my fortunes. How didst thou bring her from the shades to light?

HERCULES

ADMETUS

Where, say'st thou, didst thou fight this fight with Death?

HERCULES

From ambush by the tomb mine hands ensnared him.

ADMETUS

Now wherefore speechless standeth thus my wife?

HERCULES

'Tis not vouchsafed thee yet to hear her voice, Ere to the Powers beneath the earth she be Unconsecrated, and the third day come. But lead her in, and, just man as thou art, Henceforth, Admetus, reverence still the guest-Farewell. But I must go, and work the work Set by the king, the son of Sthenelus.

CHORUS

- O the works of the Gods—in manifold forms they reveal them:
 - Manifold things unhoped-for the Gods to accomplishment bring.
- And the things that we looked for, the Gods deign not to fulfil them;
- And the paths undiscerned of our eyes, the Gods unseal them.

So fell this marvellous thing.

[Exeunt omnes.
